

The New Orleans correspondent of the New York Times, after saying that Governor Kellogg, on entering office four years ago, found a State debt of more than $23,000,000, and a State tax of 22 1/2 mills, and then he left it, three months ago, with a State debt of less than $10,000,000 and a State tax of 14 1/2 mills, remarks: "After three months of legislation, free from all interference, and exempted from the embarrassment of a single Republican voice in its councils, the Democratic party has failed to make even the beginning of a reform record. Several of the very men for appointing whom Kellogg was, in time gone by, denounced and threatened, have been put into places of trust and profit by Nichols Pinchback is a case in point."

The New York Times very properly says that Wade Hampton is a man of force and fraud over justice and right. This is the view generally entertained by the thinking people of the North, and this being the case as few dispatches as possible from Senator Gordon claiming that "the friends of peace, justice and constitutional government everywhere rejoice with you" Hampton, the better. Gov. Hampton and his friends will do well to let the curtain of oblivion hide the memories of the late campaign of the Palmetto State. The Hamburg massacre, the election of chief assassin Butler United States Senator, the ten thousand well armed rifle clubs in the streets of Columbia, and the Democratic majority in Edgefield county larger than its whole population are not just the things which "the friends of peace, justice and constitutional government everywhere" are going very wildly jubilant over. The withdrawal of the troops of the United States from the South Carolina State House rests on an entirely different basis than the recognition of the "peace" or "justice" of Hampton's election in November last.

Though not strictly O. K., according to the orthodox line and plummet, Spotted Tail has done invaluable service as a missionary of peace among the hostiles. He started out some weeks ago of his own accord, to induce the hostile bands of the Sioux to come in to the agencies and be at peace with the Government. Being by this time out of ammunition, and tolerably hard up for beef and beans, the braves on the war-path consented to do so, and a large number of them have come back, have surrendered all their arms that could not be hidden in the country, have given up all the foot-stone, broken-down, spavined, halt, lame and blind of their ponies and expressed their intention to become good Indians. No doubt they will be so, for while at last, but if the officers in command at the reservations are shrewd, they will give no opportunity for deceit. A Sioux Indian is naturally as treacherous as a cat, and though Spotted Tail has done his part of the work well, there is no telling how long after being fed and clothed the converted Sioux will remain peaceable.

IMPORTANT DECISION

The supreme court of the United States has just rendered an important decision affecting the value of certain railroad bonds issued by the town of Wenona, this state. The law authorizing their issue was passed by the house and senate and confirmed by the signature of the governor. A careful examination of the records showed that there was not a legal quorum in the senate voting at the time of the passage of the bill. Still, the supreme court, last December, by a vote of five to four decided the bonds valid in the hands of innocent purchasers. The decision was very savagely attacked from many legal quarters and a new hearing was finally granted. The court have now reversed their former opinion, and declare that the well known principle of common law—is applicable in this case. They hold that the purchasers of bonds have no right to take it for granted that they are genuine and lawfully issued, it is their duty to investigate the subject and see not only that all the legal formalities relating to their issue were properly complied with, but that the law itself was regularly passed. Wenona will therefore escape the payment of one or two hundred thousand dollars worth of bonds, while the investors will lose their money and the value of all kinds of municipal bonds will be materially depreciated.

PEARLS BEFORE SWINE.

Talmage Addresses Wall Street on Laying up Treasures in Heaven.

Mr. Talmage preached last Sunday morning on "Wall street looked at from a Christian standpoint." His text was from Jeremiah, xvii, 2—"As the partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not; so he that getteth riches, and doth not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at the end shall be a fool."

Allusion is made, said Mr. Talmage, to the well known fact in natural history that if a partridge or a quail or a robin brood over the eggs of another species of bird the young will not all here to the end: that happened to have brooded them, but will, with the first opportunity, consort with their own species. So a man may gather large estates, but they belong to somebody else they will leave him soon.

Across the Island of New York, in 1685, a wall of stone and earth, cannon mounted, was erected to keep off the savages. A street was laid along by that wall, and as the street took the line of the wall it was very properly called Wall street. It is short, narrow and unarchitectural, but unique in history, and excepting Lombard street in London, the mightiest street in the world. The history of Wall street would be a large part of the history of this country, financially, agriculturally, religiously. It stands for the most antagonistic opposites—unswerving integrity and tip top scoundrelism. The best men and the worst may be found there. I would like to put the plough in at the curbstone of old Trinity and drive it clear down to Wall street ferry, and so it shall go if the horses are stout enough to draw the plough. In the first place Wall street stands for tried integrity on the one hand and the most outrageous villainy on the other. If I wanted to find integrity bomb proof I would seek it among the Wall street bankers and merchants. Such things have been done there sometimes that bad men have almost given a reputation to the street. But if you start and look at the names on the signs you will find that there are more upright men in the space on that street than on any business doing street of all our cities. The Board of Brokers, which is considered by most people an aquarium of sharks, has a record for financial accuracy equaled by no moneyed institution in the world. But I have to say also that in that street there are the worst financial desperados this country has ever seen. These are the spiders waiting for the innocent flies. These are the men who last week attempted to throw our country into the paroxysms of 1869 and 1873—who wanted to make a black Monday blacker than any black Friday. I do not own a dollar in Panama or Pacific Mail or any other stock. But when I open the paper and find that one embarrassed broker had been able to make his contract good and another had been magnanimously helped by his friends I feel grateful to God. I want to say to all men whose principles are not settled in business, "Keep out of Wall street: that is no place for men whose principles quiver in the blast of temptation. Remember Jim Fisk, whose splendid success could not tone off his adulterous rides in Central Park in the face of decent New York, and who, by his example in Wall street, has blasted the futures of tens of thousands of honest young men."

A man has as thorough a right to deal in New York Central stocks or Toledo & Wabash or Western Union Telegraph as he has to deal in iron or coal or dry goods. Stop legitimate speculation in this country and you stop the factories, the banks, the railroads—all the great financial prosperities in the country. But here we must draw a very careful line between lawful speculation and stock gambling. You, the stock gambler, sell $100,000 worth of nothing and get paid for it; you steal from that man just so much money. You say it's a contract on time, but the man who buys it doesn't want it. Seller thirty days—you buy a hundred shares, you are to give for them $10,000. It is to be delivered in thirty days. If at the end of that time you can get the scrip for $9,000 then you make $1,000. If you have to pay $11,000 then you have lost $1,000. This is trafficking on chance—that is, betting on chance. There is certainly as much gambling as when one gambles his money in one of the gambling halls. It is against this that I warn young men. By such means, fortunes gathered in forty years are lost in a day. Oh! it is any wonder that these men sometimes lose their reason—that some of them have suddenly put a pistol to their foreheads and ended the tragedy? Against this stock-gambling I enter my protest. It has been the curse of every Christian country and every Christian age.

Some day when you leave your office or go to the bank, or start on your way home, just look up at the clock on Trinity Church steeple and by the motion of the hands be reminded of the fact that your business life is rapidly going away, and before the throne of God's scrutinizing judgment you must give an account for every day's work of business since you entered Wall street. For the stock-gambler will break at the first call. No smuggling into heaven, no collaterals on which to trade your way in! Through Jesus Christ you enter or you are forever thrust out. I wish you all prosperity in business. Stand close by Christ and Christ will stand close by you. By so much as your temptations may be great your reward will be magnificent. God forbid that when your business on earth is done the pastor who officiates at your funeral should think as the most appropriate text for your funeral oration:—"As the partridge sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not; so he that getteth riches, and doth not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at the end shall be a fool." And God forbid that the officiating clergyman of the day should give out for the funeral psalm most appropriate to the occasion the words of the English poet:—

Price of money, a crime and a sin,
And gold, gold, gold!

IS MIGHT RIGHT?

From the Inter-Ocean.
Does might make right? That's the pertinent question to be decided just now.

The Commission down in Louisiana are hearing evidence as to how many judges and justices of the peace recognize Packard and how many Nicholls; how many parish officers of all kinds and colors swear allegiance to the Republican, and how many to the Democratic State governments.

What has all this to do with the law and the justice of the case? It is to be considered an argument favorable to a claimant for an office that he has more bribe, more cut-throats, more sharpshooters, more law breakers in the ranks of his supporters than his opponent? Out upon such law and such logic!

We do not allude simply to the case in Louisiana, for as a matter of fact we believe that more officials recognize Packard than Nicholls, but is it the principle we denounce. The recognition of such a doctrine is a jump 200 years backward. It is proclaiming that in this enlightened land the strong man is the right man, and that weakness and humility must become the slave of power and arrogance.

If such a principle obtains, of what use is the ballot? The inquiry will be, not who has the most votes, but who has the most guns. There is not a fundamental principle of our government which this doctrine does not antagonize and insult. It is a blow at the very life-principle of a Republic, where the majority of men, and not the superior number of shot-guns, is supposed to govern.

What the Louisiana Commission should inquire is, not whether Packard or Nicholls is supported by the largest number of constables and notaries public, but which of these men got a majority of the legal votes in the state, and is the legal governor thereof. It may be interesting to know who has the largest number of judges on his side, but it has no more to do with the legal settlement of the question than the personal following of the same number of petty officials has to do with the claim of Gov. Callom to the executive chair of Illinois.

We are surprised that a commission, composed largely of men with legal minds, lend to such an absurdity the dignity of inquiry.

THOUSANDS OF AFFIDAVITS.

Many having used "patent" and prepared medicines and failed in finding the relief promised, are thereby prejudiced against all medicines. Is this right? Would you condemn all physicians because one failed to give the promised relief? Some go to California in search of gold, and after working hard for months and finding none, return home and say there is no gold there. Does that prove it? Many suffering with catarrh and pulmonary affections have used the worthless preparations that crowd the market, and their disappointment says there is no cure for catarrh. Do not do that. Do not let it rather prove that they have failed to employ the proper remedy? There are thousands of people in the United States who can make an affidavit that Dr. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY and Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL REMEDY have effected their entire cure. Many had been afflicted for months, and pieces of bone had repeatedly been removed from the nasal cavities.

Boschee's German Syrup can now be purchased right at home, it is the most successful preparation ever introduced to our people. It works like a charm in all cases of Consumption, Pneumonia, Hemorrhages, Asthma, severe Coughs, Croup and all other Throat and Lung Diseases. No person has ever used this medicine without getting immediate relief, yet there are a great many poor, suffering, skeptical persons going about our streets with a suspicious cough, and the voice of consumption coming from their lungs, that will not try it. If you die it is your own fault, as you can go to your druggists, A. J. STONER, The Hibernia Pharmacy, 112 E. Duane St., and get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try it; three doses will relieve any case. Regular Size only 75 cents. Knowingly.

Troubles of the Commissioners.

HAYES WILL NOT DECIDE BETWEEN THE RIVAL GOVERNORS.

More From St. Louis Fire.

HUNTING FOR DEAD BODIES.

St. Louis, April 13.—A force of about 150 men began work again at the Southern Hotel ruins, this morning, and shortly afterwards the body of a woman was found on the fourth street front, but it was so disfigured that it could not be recognized. It was taken to the morgue to await further developments.

Charles W. Shepard, one of the proprietors of the hotel, gives the opinion that none of the employees of the house, excepting those heretofore reported, were killed. About twenty of them are still unaccounted for, but it is believed that they are either with friends in a remote part of the city, or gone away. Of the guests, 38 have not reported, but the reasonable presumption is, that most of them left the city the day following the fire, or have since left.

The coroner will not begin his investigation until Monday, but will then make a very thorough inquiry into all the facts in connection with the fire. The jury will probably consist of some of the most prominent and practical men in the city.

Another body, that of a man, has just been found about five feet from that of the woman found this morning. The body has not yet been recognized, and probably will not be; it is badly burned and came to pieces.

The Board of police commissioners held a special meeting yesterday afternoon, at which there was a free discussion regarding the fire. A resolution was adopted the coroner the service of an officer in making investigations into the matter.

LATEST.

The remains taken from the ruins last evening, supposed to be those of a child, proved, on examination, to be those of a dog. The bodies of the man and woman found to day were identified as Mr. F. Clark and wife, of North Adams, Mass. The lady was identified by a dress she wore and the gentleman by his watch.

J. E. Russell, chief engineer of the hotel, made a statement of his experience the night of the fire, which throws some light on the origin of the fire. He says he left the engine room about half past 11 o'clock, leaving an assistant in charge, and went to his room on the fifth floor, near the baggage elevator. He was aroused about five minutes past 1 o'clock by the shrieks of women; he hurried out and found the hall filled with smoke, which came from the freight elevator, but saw no fire; started for the south part of the house with a view to descend by the servants' stairway; was obliged to crawl on hands and knees to prevent suffocation, the smoke was so dense. There were a number of women on the fifth floor crying piteously for help, whom he told to follow him to the lower floor; some did and others were too distracted, apparently, to do as he directed. Finally he reached the dining room floor, passed into the kitchen and descended by the basement. Here he found the smoke very dense; that the pumps connected with the engine had been in operation, and that some of the employees had been throwing water upon the fire, which at that time was raging furiously in the store room. A nozzle had been blown off before he reached the basement. A new nozzle was attached, the pumps again put to work and the stream turned upon the fire. This was continued until the fire became so hot and had spread so far that the men were compelled to flee to save their lives. They made their exit through the basement under the rear part of the building and emerged on Elm street. This account does not state how long the fire had been burning to the knowledge of at least several of the employees of the house before the fire alarm was turned on, but it does show, and conclusively, that efforts were made to subdue it before the guests were aroused or any attempt made to notify them that the building was burning. It seems to be pretty certain, at all events it is extensively believed, that the hotel was known to be on fire by the employees from twenty minutes to half an hour before the fire department was notified.

Russell also states that there was a pile of mattresses in one corner of the store-room, and a lot of loose hair, and about five feet from them, on the floor, was a box in which a stock of matches was kept. He thinks the mattresses and matches had a good deal to do with the origin of the fire, but does not know anything definite about it.

The death list is reported as follows: Rev. A. R. Adams, of England; George F. Gouley, Henry Hazen, Mrs.

W. S. Stewart, Charles Tierman, Andrew Einstein, H. J. Clark and wife, Kate Kelley, Kate Dolan and Mary Moran, servants, and Wm. Felix Munster, of England—the latter a suicide, committed under derangement brought on by intense excitement. Mrs. Scott, mother-in-law of Andrew Einstein, and Frankie McClellan, actress, who were dangerously injured, are slowly recovering. One, two or three others had broken limbs or were otherwise more or less hurt; but the above list comprises all who are known to have been killed, and it is not believed the number will be materially increased.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.—The Louisiana Commission has telegraphed the President that they find that Packard's is the de jure government of Louisiana, but that he exercises no civil powers outside of the State House in New Orleans. They have also submitted a plan for a fusion Legislature and the election of a Republican as one of the U. S. Senators. This, it is understood, means the election of Packard, who, so far as was learned, has not agreed to it. The whole question was under discussion in the Cabinet to-day, and if the President decides to recommend it there may be an acceptance of it by both parties. Ex-Archbishop General Tait has written a letter here disapproving of the policy of the Administration towards the South. Ex-Senator Wade has also written to the same effect. Both letters are private, and will probably not be published.

LATER.

There does not appear to be any room to doubt that the cabinet, at its meeting to-day, virtually settled the Louisiana question. Its conclusions were telegraphed to New Orleans to Gen. Emery, and amount simply to this: that whether the commission secures a plan of settlement or not, the troops will be withdrawn at an early date. It was thought in the cabinet that the commission would fail to accomplish anything. The president looks upon the situation here, as he did upon that in South Carolina, as a political one, and not a legal one.

It is thought at the Department of Justice that the confession of Bishop Leves published is not the entire confession, but that part of it has been retained by United States Attorney Howard. The department officials are of the opinion that it has not been made public because it implicates prominent Mormons, who would be enabled to defeat the ends of justice were it made public.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Louisiana Commissioners, in their long cipher dispatch to the President, yesterday, circumstantially relate the result of their conference with both the Nicholls and Packard Judges of the respective Supreme Courts, and other parties in interest. They say they find that the Nicholls party are not disposed to make any concessions, but will maintain their ground in the belief and hope that ultimately, as in the Hampton case in South Carolina, they will have full and unobstructed possession of the Louisiana State Governments. The Packard party are ready to enter into an arrangement for a joint Legislature to determine pending questions, but this being rejected by the Nicholls party, the Packard party ask the President to determine which is the legitimate government. The President declines to act upon the request, as, under present circumstances, he would not be justified in making a decision, owing to the disagreement of the Nicholls and Packard parties and the unpromising prospects of an accommodation. The Commissioners ask for further instructions, which will be sent after the Cabinet session.
